

A day at

future school
with

Izzy!

There once was a girl who lived in the exciting future. Izzy was her name. Izzy is a great friend to Emma that lives in the present, which is now! These friends would write lovely letters to each other on what their part of their world looks like. In one of those letters Izzy wrote about how amazing her school is. She also wrote about what her school day contains. Izzy's letter said:

"Dear Emma, how is the present! The future is unimaginable! School is exciting too!

My school day starts off once I wake up and get ready for the day. Right away when I slip through my house door my yellow levitating school bus that flies

all the way to school arrived.

After my bus flight ends I arrive at school. Robots take my lunch capsule to put it away nicely. Walking to my classroom their smart glasses. These glasses allow us to watch where we're going and review our notes through a screen. My classroom is filled with sharpen pencils that will never go dull. The desks with bean bag chairs wiggle around the room. As subjects take place, we learn with our robot teacher Mrs. Zen. Mrs. Zen creates pictures of math problems or history in our smart glasses. Lunch is in the middle of the day. We sit (3) down on floating tables. Today when I opened up my capsule it contained a floating cupcake and a slice of pizza. After lunch at recess we played slime kickball with androids. The rest of the day I had science and language. At 2:00 p.m. I got out of an epic day at school! Hope your school days are extraordinary!

Your out of this world
Friend,
Izzy♡"
