MS. COZMET

August 30, 2055

Oh. My. Gosh. I was so nervous for the 1st day of school. I have an alien teacher this year. Her name is Ms. Cozmet and she's really nice. I did have a hard time finding my locker because I thought it was on the ground but it turns out it is on the ceiling. It was just a little confusing though because I finally found it. I'm so glad Zara and I are in the same class as me because if she hadn't, I would've died!

Good night, Diary!

Today when I got to school, Zara was ignoring me. I mean, just because she has an anti-gravity desk doesn't mean she gets to ignore me.

Then in Time Travel Class today, the assignment was to travel back in time to the Stone Age. It was so boring!

So anyway, that was the bad part of the day but at least they were serving anti-gravity soda in the cafeteria. You know the jingle, "Once you drink it, you won't be down! You'll be floating off the ground!"

Gotta go... homework time.

I'm really sad because today was the last day of school. I cried basically the entire last hour of class. I'm also kinda nervous because I mean... middle school on the moon? Zara is going to middle school on Mars so I won't even get to be with her!

But anyway, that's next year. Right now I'm just kinda like well, it was a good school year. My favorite part was when we took a field trip to the History of 2023 Museum. They didn't have flying cars and hadn't even discovered aliens yet! I mean, seriously? And the dances they did were really weird!

Another thing that I loved was when we did the science experiment where we learned how to clone ourselves. I mean, I love coming home to my own clone. That was cool.

I have to go because Zara is sending me a mind message. Bye!

Love, Larissa
